

The CCLRU Grading Scales Poster provides practitioners and students with photographs and gradings of a range of conditions which may occur during contact lens wear. This assists the practitioner in judging the severity of an eye condition, which is often the first step to the correct treatment. The poster is the culmination of many years research by CCLRU in developing grading systems to assess new contact lens products and their effects on the eye.

The poster was sponsored by Vistakon, a division of Johnson and Johnson, to provide copies of the poster to practitioners and students worldwide in a number of languages.

The Grading Scales Poster has been endorsed by the International Association of Contact Lens Educators as an invaluable aid to contact lens practitioners and students in assessing the eye during contact lens wear.
